

Risk of increased domestic violence during the Covid-19 outbreak

A consequence of the spread of the Coronavirus and efforts to limit the outbreak is that many people spend more time at home. For those who are exposed to domestic violence, this means an increased risk of violence.

Oftentimes, we are informed of domestic violence by neighbours who notice, are concerned and act.

The police and the municipality urge you as a fellow human being and a neighbour to contact us if you think that someone in your vicinity is subject to violence or mistreatment in any way.
